Electrode.
SIMPLE IN CONSTRUCTION,
PERMANENT IN DURATION, EASILY APPLIED, ITS SCALP-FUL USE QUICKLY LEARNED.

The Electrode is an Instrument for the
CURE OF DISEASE
WITHOUT MEDICINE.

BASED on new theories of the cause and cure of disease, it deals with the electrical and magnetic currents of the body and the gases surrounding it in the atmosphere, controlling these conditions at will. It is not electricity. DISEASE is simply impaired vitality. The Electrode constantly adds to the vitality, and only acts in nature, in nature's way, to throw off the trouble.

Burned at the Stake.

A dispatch from Texarkana, Ark., says:
Ed. Coy, the negro, who on Saturday week committed a felonious assault upon Mrs.
Henry Jewell, this young wife of a respectable farmer, in her home, three miles from here, where she was nursing a five-months-old child, was burned to death last Saturday afternoon in the presence of 6000 persons. Since the time of the assault Coy had succeeded in eluding the officers of the law until Saturday afternoon, when he was discovered at the house of Ed. Gains, colored, four miles from there. He had a mattress at the house of Gains, and it was she who told where he was. Fear for herself and family prompted her to reveal his whereabouts.
Saturday morning the mattress of Coy went to the house of a white neighbor, Mr.
A. B. Scott, living near by, and told him that Coy was at the house of Gains. Scott at once sent a message with the news to town, and a posse immediately went out to arrest the negro. Meantime, however, Coy went to Gains' house, but was apprehended and taken in charge by Mr. Scott and two sons, who held him until the arrival of the men from town.

The latter immediately seized the prisoner, and, placing him in a carriage, conveyed him to the jail here, where Mrs. Jewell, without hesitation, identified him beyond all doubt as the man who had assaulted her. The watch was returned to her, and she was placed under guard. It being resolved that he should not be disposed of until all the posers that were still out should be called to, in order that they might take part in the proceedings. All the posers were in by 2 o'clock, and the leaders, after a consultation, decided to hang the negro to a telegraph pole, the most public place in the city. Coy was re-cordingly marched to this point, with a view to carrying out this programme, but when the crowd saw the rope and divined that hanging had been decided upon, there were thousands of protests.

"Away with the rope; hang him to a tree for him; burn him!"
The leaders soon saw the futility of opposing the mob's wish, but begged that the deed should take place out of town, and to this the crowd agreed. The crowd rushed the doomed wretch on until the Iron Mountain railroad tracks had been crossed.
Here is a beautiful grass plot of two or three acres.

Coy was strapped to the body of a tree with iron fastenings, and coal oil was poured over his entire person in liberal quantities. There was a moment's silence and then another shout went up.
"Let Mrs. Jewell apply the match; let Mrs. Jewell set him off! Where's Mrs.
Jewell?"

"Here," responded a few voices on the edge of the crowd.
"Bring her forward," was ordered by a man who seemed to be master of ceremonies.

The woman made her way through the crowd leaning upon the arm of a relative.
In a minute she was in front of the frightened negro. Her appearance set the mob fairly wild, and such a cheer went up as most shook the ground on which they were standing. Without a word the spokesman placed in her hand a torch.

Mrs. Jewell looked at the negro, the spokesman and fatteringly turned to the crowd. "No, no. Apply it!" was the cry, as the woman was seen to falter.

The torch was applied instantly by the woman, who immediately turned and made her way through the crowd.
In a second the poor wretch was a mass of consuming flames, but even in death his wonderful nerve, exhibited ever since his arrest, never forsook him, and while suffering the tortures of fire, he actually called at the men of the assembly, and in a clear voice requested of them:

"Move back so the ladies can see." He referred to the negro women, a large number of whom witnessed the execution.
Coy made little noise pending his horrible death except to groan and grunt, and died in about seven minutes after the application of the match.

The people of Texarkana deplore the necessity of mob law, but the opinion is general that Coy was rightly punished.

burg, Pa., aged sixty-five years, has just married
